

The California Transparency in Supply Chains Act (SB 657)
Disclosure Regarding Slavery and Human Trafficking

Educational Products, Inc. (“EPI”) is committed to principles of human rights. We do not, intentionally or knowingly, use slaves or subject humans to trafficking, nor do we, in the supply chains we use to obtain our products, intentionally or knowingly do business with any company or person that engages in slavery or human trafficking. As evidence of our commitment, EPI employs the following policies and procedures in our business relationships to support the eradication of slavery and human trafficking in the United States and abroad:

Effective January 1, 2012, we will seek to include a provision in our new or renewing written product vendor contracts valued in excess of $500,000 a year requiring written certification that those vendors do not engage in slavery or human trafficking.

Effective January 1, 2012, we will include a statement of our compliance with the California Transparency in Supply Chains Act of 2010 (SB 657) as well as a statement against slavery and human trafficking in our vendor purchase orders (“POs”).

In 2012 we will provide training on preventing slavery and human trafficking (including the mitigation of risks within the supply chains of products) to all employees who have direct responsibility for supply chain management. Effective January 1, 2012, our Director of Quality Assurance will conduct an annual internal audit of our compliance with the above steps and will remedy any compliance failures.

We do not engage in verification of product supply chains to evaluate and address risks of human trafficking, nor do we conduct audits of suppliers to evaluate supplier compliance with our standards for trafficking and slavery in supply chains.

Any questions or concerns about our policy should be directed to our Quality Assurance Department at quality@excelligence.com.
